Commission hears update on bridge project

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

The Madison Redevelopment Commission heard an update on a new Madison Railroad bridge project and picked a firm to handle its financial planning at its monthly meeting on Thursday.

The Commission heard a report from Cathy Hale about the Madison Railroad's project to build a new bridge over Graham Creek. The $6 million project has received about $4.2 million in grants, but an additional $1.8 million will be needed to make up the total cost. The Railroad is using nearly $800,000 from its reserves and has received loans and a contribution from Jennings County to complete the project.

Hale said the Railroad will exhaust its reserves in order to get the project completed, but is in the process of applying for loans to make up any budgetary shortfalls. Bids for the project are expected by the end of the year and Hale is hopeful that it will be completed next year.

The Commission also heard a presentation by Gary Smith, senior vice-president for Reedy Financial about how the company can aid the Commission with its financial planning needs. The Commission voted to retain Reedy's services on a contract costing $35,000 per year with the Commission paying $14,583 for the remainder of 2020.

Madison Mayor Bob Courtney also gave an update on the city's search to develop a new grocery store downtown. Courtney said the city is currently in negotiations with a vendor and is hopeful of having a new store by the end of the year.

"We have had a pitch to an independent grocer recently and we are waiting to hear back," Courtney said. "Even if that doesn't go through, we at least now have a framework for getting a grocer by the end of the year."

In other business, the Commission approved a total of $37,618.38 in claims — $16,826.88 to Sedam Contracting, $12,500 to the Madison Sewer Department, $5,500 to SME, and $2,791.50 to Jacobi, Toombs & Lanz.

The next meeting of the Madison Redevelopment Commission will be at 3 p.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 8.

Stream Cliff Farm wins rural preservation award

For their role in preserving Stream Cliff Farm outside Commiskey, in Jennings County, Betty and Gerald Manning won the 2020 John Arnold Award for Rural Preservation, presented by Indiana Landmarks and Indiana Farm Bureau.

Stream Cliff Farm's impressive collection of nineteenth-century buildings initially supported traditional farming operations. Today they house the farm's herb and flower business, restaurant, winery and special events venue.

Stream Cliff's origins date back to 1821, when James Harmon moved from Maine to Indiana, where he established a farm using a land grant awarded to his father, a Revolutionary War veteran who served under Benedict Arnold. Harmon reportedly lived in a hollow tree while he built a barn and baked bricks to construct his farmhouse between 1836 and 1843.

The property survived a visit by Confederate soldiers during General John Hunt Morgan's raid through southern Indiana in 1863. Harmon died without heirs a few months later, leaving the farm to the Methodist church. Betty Manning's ancestors bought the farm shortly thereafter, and since then six generations have worked on the property.

"There's a longing to keep things nice so other generations can enjoy what you've enjoyed," says Betty, who, with her husband, Gerald, took on the farm shortly after marrying in 1965. "I do recognize how special that is."

Personal hobbies and gardening interests took the farm in a new direction around 1972, when the Mannings started selling crafts, cornhusk dolls and dried florals. They pressed Betty's grandpa's blacksmith shop — located in an early nineteenth-century cabin — back into service, creating hand-forged items to sell. They created quilt-shaped gardens in homage to Betty's grandmother, an avid quilter and gardener. "We were practicing agritourism before it had a name," says Betty.

County adopts golf cart ordinance

BY COLLIN OVERTON

Jefferson County Commissioners gave final approval to an ordinance setting regulations on golf cart use in unincorporated areas of the county Thursday night.

The rules are in line with state regulations on legal golf cart usage and bear similarities to the City of Madison's ordinance first adopted a decade ago, following the emerging popularity of golf carts being driven through neighborhoods downtown and on the hilltop. The county's ordinance sets regulations for driving on state or federal roads and insurance and registration requirements, seating capacity and other areas of concern for state and local agencies.

Effective immediately, the ordinance sets the following limits:

- Golf carts cannot cross Cliffy Drive at any point.
- Golf carts cannot operate on State Roads 56, 62, 7, US 421 or any other state or federal highway except to cross at intersections.
- Drivers must yield right of way to faster-moving vehicles and not impede traffic.
- Carts cannot be driven from 30 minutes after sunset to 30 minutes before sunrise unless they have two working headlights and two brake lights visible at a distance of 500 feet.
- Drivers must display a triangular slow moving vehicle sign on their cart, approved by the state, at a distance of five to six feet above ground.
- The number of passengers per cart cannot exceed the number of designated seats. Child restraints should be used in accordance with state traffic and vehicle rules for transporting young children.
- The operator and passenger must remain seated and not extend any body part outside the perimeter of the vehicle while in motion.
- Only people 16 years or older holding a valid driver's license can operate a golf cart.
- Drivers must comply with all state traffic rules and regulations governing the use of motor vehicles.
- All golf carts will be registered with the county and bear a sticker. The county will collect a fee for registration, which county commissioners will set from time to time.
- The operator of the golf cart must carry proof of financial responsibility as recognized by the state when driving.
- All carts must have liability insurance up to the minimum amount required by the state.

Holding up a bag of registration stickers Thursday, Commissioner Robert Little said stickers will cost $30 per cart and cover the remainder of 2020 as well as 2021.

Safety around golf carts will continue to be an important issue, with the county experiencing its first golf cart wreck last week when a driver lost sight of the roadway at night and ended up in a ditch on Wolf Run Road, Sheriff Dave Thomas said Thursday by phone. He expressed his hesitancy about allowing golf carts to be used on county roads with lots of turns, faster speed limits and less visibility.

With the number of carts already out on county roads, Commission President David Bramer said it was necessary to give law enforcement more teeth immediately to keep people safe.

"It does concern me to a certain degree. It's a little bit different from riding around in the city where it's all flat and you can see," Thomas said.

3 suspects charged in Carroll drug arrest

BY COLLIN OVERTON

The Carroll County Sheriff's Office arrested three suspects in Carrollton Sunday after an investigation into a fight in front of a local residence led to the discovery of an alleged small drug trafficking operation.

Sheriff Ryan Gosser said officers were dispatched to 214 Main Street after a neighbor reported an altercation between two females fighting over a purse. The investigation led police to an apartment building at 218 Main Street where they discovered an ounce of methamphetamine, $773 in cash, an unspecified amount of heroin, other pills, a rifle, two smaller firearms and drug paraphernalia.

Three Carrollton residents were arrested including John Sienczenko, 47, charged with trafficking a controlled substance, possession of methamphetamine enhanced with firearms and possession of drug paraphernalia; Jacob Hazelwood, 38, was charged with trafficking a controlled substance, possession of methamphetamine enhanced with firearms, possession of paraphernalia and tampering with physical evidence.

Officers also charged Roxanne Arvin, 37, with trafficking a controlled substance, possession of methamphetamine, possession of paraphernalia and possession of heroin.

All three were lodged in the Carroll County Detention Center and released on own recognizance bonds.

The Carrollton Police Department also assisted.

TRAFFIC STOP NETS 3 ARRESTS

A routine traffic stop on Madison's hilltop led to the arrest of three men by Madison Police early Wednesday morning.

MPD Patrolman Cody Lewis conducted the traffic stop at 1:12 a.m. at Cragmont Street and Phillips Lane after a driver failed to use turn signals at the intersection of Green Road and Cragmont Street.

As Lewis approached the vehicle, he detected the odor of marijuana coming from the passenger compartment of the vehicle. That odor established probable cause for the officer to search the vehicle and during that search officers located marijuana, methamphetamine and drug paraphernalia.

The vehicle's operator, Michael Jennings, 20, of Scipio, was charged with possession of methamphetamine, possession of marijuana, possession of paraphernalia, and maintaining a common nuisance. Two passengers, Ethan Littrell, 19, of Holton, Indiana and Will Newby, 20, of Bedford, Kentucky, were both charged with possession of methamphetamine, possession of marijuana, possession of paraphernalia and visiting a common nuisance.

18-YEAR-OLD CHARGED IN BURGLARY

An 18-year-old Madison man has been charged with felony burglary in connection with the alleged theft of an undisclosed amount of cash from the Dollar General Store located in downtown Madison.

Madison Police responded to a report of a burglary at the store, 408 Jefferson Street, early Tuesday morning and determined the building had been entered and money was missing.

Patrolman Joseph Gibson led the initial investigation with a follow-up conducted by Detective Ricky Harris. As a result of the investigation, store employee Taylor Brinson was developed as a possible suspect in the burglary and later charged. Brinson, 18, of Madison, is charged with burglary, a Level 5 felony.

Evidence in connection with the burglary has been seized. The investigation is ongoing.

Officers Josh Nolan and Season Jackson assisted Gibson with the initial investigation.

Tourism meeting triggers resignations from boards

BY COLLIN OVERTON

A Jefferson County Board of Tourism discussion on Wednesday turned somewhat contentious when board members were discussing a funding request from the 5 to the 5 Vintage Hydros group that is staging a raceboat exhibition on the Ohio River next month at Madison.

Representing the 5 to the 5 organization, Cary Strouse appeared before the tourism board asking the group to contribute $10,000 and $15,000 to the event this year.

The event, held annually since 2016 with the exception of 2018 when high water prevented access to the river, has received a combined $7,000 from tourism over that span. The boat race drew 4,000 visitors last year and about 6,000 two years ago."

Strouse explained that with all other vintage events and several other boat racing series canceled this year due to the COVID-19 pandemic, his group expects a larger number of boats and a bigger crowd this year and that will drive up costs for, among other things an additional crane. Crane rental normally runs $17,000 and should be a little higher this year and insurance, portable restrooms and other fees drive up those costs to about $30,000.

Strouse said the group has several industries who support the event both financially and through other donations so the $5,500 in sanctioning fees has already been paid. The group is keeping this year's event free for spectators so it is asking for additional support from tourism since visitors from a wide region will be in Madison to stay in motels and eat and shop locally.

Since Strouse did not have a budget breakdown on anticipated expenditures, some board members asked what the money would be used for. He said the money goes to marketing, rental, insurance, fees, hotel rooms and an appreciation dinner for participants.

A couple of board members noted that while tourism marketing seemed like an acceptable expenditure of tourism dollars, appearance fees and other courtesies would not be appropriate use of that money.

Strouse said most of the group's marketing is through social media or Visit Madison.

Another board member noted that since the group is in its fifth season that it might not be eligible for tourism support since there was a three-year cutoff on funding to get events up and going on their own. Other board members said there was no such limitation but that the board did encourage organizers to become self-sufficient.

Noting that allocating $15,000 in a year when the board's budget has been wrecked by COVID-19, board member Renie Stephens made a motion to contributed $3,000 to the event and board member Kathy Petkovic seconded. However, before a vote could be called, Petkovic upped the amount to $5,000 creating an impasse among board members on what they were voting on.

Board member Curtis Chatham noted the board got the application late and said it's not a very complete application. Board member Tami Hagemier said she wanted to see a marketing plan and a general budget.

"We've used this form for six years and these people are generally local," board president Bobby Little said. " I don't see raking this guy over the coals."

"I'm not," Chatham responded.

"No, no you are," Little said.

At about that point Stephens, who had a motion and a second on the floor, left the meeting.

"If we're not going to take a vote on this we might as well adjourn," said Little.

The remaining board members — Little, Petkovic, Hagemier, Chatham — eventually said they could all support a $3,000 allocation to be used for marketing but not promotion. The vote was 4-0 with the board quickly adjourning.

Some 48 hours later, Stephens and Little have both announced their resignations from the JCBT while Visit Madison Board members Cara Fox and John Nyberg have also tendered letters of resignation, Visit Madison Executive Director Tawana Thomas confirmed at about noon on Friday.

Citing internal tensions and a "new energy" for the past six to nine months, Fox said she thinks it's time the board reevaluates. She described Wednesday's disagreement as "icing on the cake" for her decision to move on.

"We are always welcome to look and revisit how we handle things as far as our policies for granting money, how we conduct our business meetings, but there's a right and wrong way we should be approached about that," she said.

"… I will always be involved in tourism efforts. I'm hopeful that good changes will come from all this shaking up. I definitely will volunteer and serve on committees, but as far as anything beyond that I'm just not really sure right now," Fox added. "I'm just going to step back and focus on promoting my little store during this crazy time."

Little said he was reluctant to step away, but over time the negative issues persisted.

"There was some negativity on the board, we tried to work through it and it just didn't happen. I know the ones who have resigned, myself included, thought it wasn't the direction and the atmosphere that we wanted people to see coming into Jefferson County and the city of Madison," Little said.

From here, Thomas said, discussions need to made with City Council and other boards that make appointments to JCTB. Thomas said she is also reaching out to nonprofit experts and others who have dealt with similar situations to identify the best course of action going forward.

For a community and tourism industry that has fared well in comparison to other small communities, she said Visit Madison could not afford to be sidetracked by a personnel problem.

"We've got too much going for us. So we have to get through this emotional struggle and look at the common denominator and fix it," she said.

Eder shoots 73 as Madison golf places 4th

BY COURIER STAFF REPORTS

Keara Eder shot a 73 and collected her first eagle of the season as Madison's girls golf team placed fourth in the seven-team Seymour Invitational at Shadowood Golf Course on Wednesday.

Keara Eder

Eder, a junior, played her best match of the young season which included a chip-in eagle and a long putt to save par. Her 73 was good for third overall in the tournament, just two strokes back of medalist Sam Brown of Westfield.

"Keara really turned it on today. It was nice to see her rounding into form and to see her crack a smile out there. She had a couple of amazing shots," Madison coach Jake Shockley said. "Of course, she gave some back as well, but she was really zoned in for the last half to two-thirds of the round."

Overall, Madison shot a 408, its best team score of the year despite the absence of No. 2 player Jenna Imel. Grace Bronkella shot a personal-best 90, Gracie Gasaway had a 117 and Gibson James had a 128.

"Grace also played extremely well, shooting a personal-best 90. I knew a score like that would pop up for her sooner or later. Her game is just improving too much for it not to," Shockley said. "Grace and Gibson battled hard out there today, and I loved how they got around the course. Grace shooting 117 so early in her career is pretty exciting. I think she can get lower with some effort. She hit some really good shots. And Gibson's a warrior. She's always fighting."

Westfield lived up to its billing as one of the best teams in the state, shooting a 305 to win the match. Bedford North Lawrence was second with a 344 and Columbus East was third with a 368. Brownstown was fifth with a 417, Seymour was sixth with a 431 and Scottsburg was seventh with a 441.

"I think we played pretty well today, all things considered. We were down two starters, and we were still able to put up a competitive score," Shockley said. "Westfield is a great program, and it sure would be nice to run the kind of ship they do, but I was proud of our players today."

Madison's next match will be Monday when it hosts Henryville at Sunrise Golf Course for its first home match of the season.

HYDRO NOTEBOOK

5 to the 5 group purchases the 'Lil Buzzard'

BY COURIER STAFF REPORTS

The 5 to the 5 Racing Club has purchased the former Pay 'N Pak's Lil Buzzard hydroplane and plans on restoring the boat to become the keystone of the group's new National Boat Racing Heritage Center to be opened in Madison.

The boat, which ran competitively for only two years, is currently located in Tavares, Florida, and is owned by John Freeman.

The 5 to the 5 group has been steadily growing over the past several years and has been trying to acquire the 1971 Gold Cup-winning Miss Madison since last year. The group's plan is to not only showcase them locally, but also to run in vintage events throughout the country.

The Lil Buzzard made its debut in 1969 as the Pride of Pay 'N Pak with Tommy Fults at the wheel for one race, a fourth-place finish in the Gold Cup. It was renamed Pay 'N Pak's Lil Buzzard the following year and won the Atomic Cup in the Tri-Cities, Washington. Fults was killed in a crash at San Diego later in the season and the boat never raced again.

After spending several years as a backup boat for the Pay 'N Pak team, it was acquired by the Atlas Van Lines team and served as a display boat.

In addition to the boat, the group has acquired an engine and trailer and is currently working on getting a hauler in order to bring the boat north.

The 5 to the 5's annual Vintage Thunder hydroplane event is still scheduled to be run Sept. 19-20 on the Ohio River in Madison. The event is open to the public.

Hank Kosciuszko/Unlimiteds Detroit

The Pay 'N Pak Lil Buzzard, shown at Detroit in 1970, has been acquired by the 5 to the 5 Club, which plans on restoring the boat.

REGATTA PICKS 2021 OFFICERS

Jak McCormick, the grandson of former Miss Madison pilot Jim McCormick, was elected vice-president of the Madison Regatta at the organization's monthly membership meeting on Wednesday.

McCormick, who currently lives in Owensboro but is planning on moving closer to the area, is a veteran of the drag boat series and has worked with the Regatta on several projects over the past year. He will serve as vice-president for the 2021 and 2022 races and will take over as president of the event in 2023 and 2024.

The elder McCormick drove for the Miss Madison Race Team for several years in the 1960s and 1970s and scored the team's signature win, the APBA Gold Cup in Madison in 1971. That victory was featured in the movie "Madison" that was released in 2002.

Other officers elected were: Roger Snell, race chair; Jason Abbott, assistant race chair; Cheryl Lyon, treasurer; Mike Lichlyter, sponsorship chair; Kim Washer, festival chair; and Nate Davis, Mark Hamilton, Michael Heitz, Harold "Snake" Perry and Marc Van Moore, board of directors. The secretary position is currently open.

OWENSBORO CANCELS GP RACE

The Owensboro Hydro-Fair has been canceled, the latest racing victim of the novel coronavirus COVID-19.

The city of Owensboro, Kentucky, had planned on putting on its first hydroplane race since 1979 with the Grand Prix America series headlining the event.

It was pushed back from its original date of Aug. 15-16 to Sept. 12-13 because of the pandemic but has now been canceled all together.

The race has been rescheduled for Aug. 20-21, 2021, as part of a 10-day festival which will kick off with the U.S. Navy's Blue Angels flight demonstration team putting on a show Aug. 14.

In Remembrance Of

Nancy Jeanette Mills Pavelka

Nancy Jeanette Mills Pavelka, age 77, died Saturday, August 1, 2020, at Northwestern Memorial Hospital. She is survived by her husband, Dr. Ronald, and their three children: Elizabeth Ann of Lisle, Illinois; Dr. Jeffrey Peter of Portland, Oregon; and Dr. Christopher Daniel of Indianapolis, Indiana; and many grandchildren with fur and four legs. In addition she is survived by brother Daniel Mills of Arlington, Virginia. She was preceded in death by parents Dwight Peter "Speedy" Mills and Helen Jeanette McKay Mills and sisters Laura Mills Schnaitter and Margery Mills Jessup.

Nancy was born October 31, 1942, in Madison, Indiana,and often claimed to have special powers due to her Halloween birthday. She graduated from Madison High School, in Madison, Indiana, in 1960 and was the class valedictorian. She also received the Indiana state GAA award her senior year. She received a dance scholarship to Indiana University after years of ballet training throughout her childhood and teenage years. She graduated from Indiana University with a nursing degree and worked as a pediatric nurse at Riley Children's Hospital. She was also a member of Kappa Kappa Kappa sorority and a Daughter of the American Revolution.

If asked the life achievement she was most proud of, that would be raising her three children. She was extremely devoted to her children and was willing to help them in any way possible to allow them to reach their goals. She sat through many practices, cheered at countless games, and pulled many all-nighters helping with school projects. She was very proud to tell those she met that her daughter was an attorney and two sons were physicians. She always enjoyed hearing about and discussing interesting cases with her sons.

Nancy loved the arts and would never turn down the chance to see a live performance. Music and theater brought her much happiness throughout her life. She was also an avid sports fan and attended Munster sporting events before her children competed and long after they graduated. When she was too weak to attend in person she would listen or watch on WJOB. Her love of sports went beyond high school, as she enjoyed college and professional sports, as well as auto racing.

She was a lover of people and life. She knew no stranger and had a knack for making people smile and laugh. She would often be surprised that people would remember her and recognize her voice after one meeting. Unfortunately as her valvular heart disease and heart failure became worse, she was less able to be out around those she loved and enjoyed spending time with. That only increased with the pandemic. Her spirit decided it was time to leave a weak body and move on to where she could do more.

The one thing she repeatedly told us in the hospital was that she wanted to stay alive to vote for Biden and watch Trump lose. It was disheartening for her to see all the progress that had been made through her life and most recently by President Obama, only to have it reversed by Trump.

In lieu of flowers, contributions can be made to the charity of your choice. Mom also requests you vote for Biden and have a big party when Trump is history!

Services will be private at this time and streamed on Zoom for those who would like to join. Please call (219) 836-8250 for broadcast details, services will be at 2 pm on Saturday, August 15th. There will be a celebration of life held when it is safe to do so.

COUNTY

Little acknowledged those concerns and said changes could be made later if golf carts proved to be a safety issue out in the county.

"We can try it and if it doesn't work out, if it becomes a safety issue, we can rescind it," Little told Thomas. "… Because I know there's so many out where I live every day, so we might as well have something to regulate them, you reckon?"

Commissioners also held readings for five other ordinances Thursday. The first was to approve a resolution applying for a block grant through the COVID-19 Revolving Loan Fund set up by the Office of Community and Rural Affairs (OCRA). Bramer explained that the Jefferson County Tourism Board and Visit Madison would be used in implementing the funds, most of which are meant to help local businesses retain medium-to-low income employees.

To become eligible for those funds, commissioners held the second reading of an amendment to the Fair Housing Ordinance to create new definitions for familial status that protect single individuals from housing discrimination. Familial status now applies to single individuals under the age of 18 with children who live with another parent or person, anyone who is pregnant or in the process of obtaining custody of anyone under 18 years, and applies to individuals regardless of sexual orientation, gender identity or marital status, the ordinance read.

Commissioners also held the first reading for ordinances governing employee conduct and ethics, internal control standards and procedures and internal financial controls and risk management to meet state standards on accounting and financial reporting.

In other business at Thursday's meeting:

• Thomas said Crawford County Jail followed through on its amended charge of $25 a day for out-of-county inmates and more of Jefferson County's inmates would be moved there in the coming days.

• Commissioners granted a $596,000 bid to Louisville Paving and Construction for work on Bridge 109 and $711,763 to Mac Construction and Excavating for additional paving work.

expanded, the Mannings repurposed more of the farm's historic buildings. They converted a mid-nineteenth-century corncrib into a chapel and adapted the c.1821 English barn and a smaller nineteenth-century barn nearby to host weddings, receptions, and other events. A c.1868 building, believed to have been built to house workers constructing a nearby railroad, provides space for an antique and gift shop. A former chicken house became the farm store. Betty's grandpa's blacksmith shop is now used for selling indoor plants, while Gerald's c.1970 blacksmith shop became a winery tasting room and gift shop.

Along with providing a destination for shopping and dining, Stream Cliff hosts wildflower walks, art shows and classes on cooking, art, crafts and gardening. Its restaurant, shops, and gardens are open mid-March through mid-October. During cold-weather months, the farm hosts special holiday teas, open houses, and fireside dinners prepared with the farm's herbs. The Mannings share news, photos, and hours of operation for the property's various ventures on the farm's website, streamclifffarm.com.

"It may be a more difficult year to maintain growth. But each generation has taken its turn to hang onto this farm, sometimes under really adverse conditions," says Betty. "My internal being says to keep what people have worked so hard to build. I'll be darned if a pandemic brings us down."

What is an immediate annuity, and does it fit into your retirement plan?

Layin' It on the Line

By Stephen Dybwad
Retirement Planning/
Wealth Management

"Income that cannot be outlived can reduce stress and lead to a happier life." Stephen Dybwad

As modern income and retirement planning have evolved, insurance companies have created a variety of safe money products to meet retirees' changing needs. One of these, the immediate annuity, also known as a "single premium immediate annuity" (SPIA), is a type of annuity with which many people are familiar.

As the name suggests, an immediate annuity can protect your guaranteed income by creating a steady stream of monthly income. If you select a lifetime income option, you cannot outlive this money, and it can start either right away, or within a year.

Purchasing an immediate annuity involves making a lump-sum contribution that is converted into a stream of income. The contractually guaranteed income can be either for a specific amount of time, say five years or longer, or for a lifetime. This structure makes immediate annuities somewhat similar to traditional pension plans or Social Security; the lump sums of cash are deposited in an insurance company to create guaranteed income.

Immediate annuities tend to work best for those who are near retirement and are concerned about making sure their income will last as long as they do. Before deciding whether an immediate annuity makes sense for you, you should look at some of the advantages and disadvantages.

For example, as the name suggests, an immediate annuity will give you income right away. Not having to wait for this payout is vital if you do not have any other income streams and are worried about outliving your savings.

Benefits include:

Guaranteed lifetime income: Knowing that you cannot outlive your retirement savings will give you greater peace of mind when you no longer work.

Stable, steady, guaranteed income: Annuities are guaranteed by the assets of the insurance company and are highly regulated by each state's Department of Insurance.

Tax advantages: Under certain situations, an immediate annuity may allow you to defer taxes until a later date.

Easy to understand Unlike many other safe money products, immediate annuities are relatively straightforward. They are mostly a "set it and forget" type of product that removes risk. When you are in the distribution phase of your life, the last thing you want is a risk.

Payouts may be higher than other products: Total returns for an annuity are typically smaller than returns from riskier products, you trade safety and security instead of exposing retirement assets to volatility. However, compared to other safe money instruments such as certificates of deposit (CDs), immediate annuity payments may offer higher payouts. Plus, income can be guaranteed for any period, even a lifetime, and in most cases, a spouse can be included.

Bells and whistles Many annuity companies offer customized options for their immediate annuities to address your specific retirement goals and needs. These include options such as "life with cash refund," "life and period certain," "inflation protection," and other specialized versions. An annuity specialist will look at your unique situation and show you which type of annuity will work best.

Immediate annuities do have a few negatives that might give you pause before purchasing. These can include inflation adjustment. Unless you buy a product with inflation protection, such inflation may result in a loss of future purchasing power.

Is an immediate annuity the right choice?

Immediate annuities can reduce your worry about running out of income during your retirement. They are some of the simplest of all safe money products and can also be a useful tool to people already in retirement, however, immediate annuities may not be an ideal choice for every retiree. Be sure to consult with an advisor who specializes in annuities to discover if an immediate annuity is right for you.

Finding home newly

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: My husband and I have been married for 37 years. We were separated for five years and, recently, have started spending time together again, with an interest in reuniting. But we've found that we get along better while he has his apartment and I have my apartment. We both really like having our independent spaces, even if we spend every night together. What do you think, Annie? Do you think we should move into one apartment together, even though we are enjoying the current arrangement? — One Marriage, Two Houses

Dear OMTH: Home isn't an address. It's a sense of belonging that you create together, under one roof or two. So, if the current setup works for you both, then why not continue? It's not the way things are usually done, but it's better to be unconventional and happy than conventional and unhappy.

Dear Annie: Recently, I appreciated a letter to you so much that I cut it out and inserted it in my meditation book. "Still Learning" wrote: "Two things have caused me to be a happier person. One is dropping my expectations of others, and the other is choosing not to be offended." The "Concerned Mother" in your recent column whose daughter didn't invite her to stay in her home but instead wanted her to go to a hotel should be referred to this thought. Simply dropping expectations or choosing not to be offended would help her get past her frustration with her daughter in addition to helping her become a happier person. Thank you for your thoughtful daily columns. — Arlean L.

Dear Arlean: Letting go of expectations is excellent advice for "Concerned Mother" — and the rest of us. I'm grateful to have such thoughtful readers as "Still Learning" and yourself. Thank you for writing.

Dear Annie: I read the letter from "The Smiths." This couple had a nice lake house that they wanted to share with visitors but were frustrated with visitors' not bringing things. While I think it would be nice if the guests would offer to make a meal, or offer to pay for a meal in a restaurant, I find it appalling that someone would have guests visit and expect them to bring their own food. It appears that these people want to show off the fact that they can afford a nice lake house, but don't want to extend common courtesies that etiquette requires. — Still a Gracious Host

Dear Gracious Host: I'm grateful to hosts such as yourself. I may have missed the mark in not giving the original letter writer some tough love, as I received several letters echoing your sentiment. Here's one more I felt was worth printing.

"Ask Me Anything: A Year of Advice From Dear Annie" is out now! Annie Lane's debut book — featuring favorite columns on love, friendship, family and etiquette — is available as a paperback and e-book. Visit http://www.creatorspublishing.com for more information. Alcohol's grip on a family

DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I grew up with an alcoholic father. It made my childhood and teenage years incredibly difficult. It strained my relationship with my dad throughout my entire life. I have since been moved out of my parents' home, for about 10 years now, and the distance has made it easier to accept the fact that he will never change, despite multiple attempts.

Now, my once very successful mother has fallen victim to the same alcoholism as my father. She lost her career that she had for 25 years and has thus lost her sense of purpose. She is now drinking alcohol to obliteration. Every. Single. Day. She has turned into my father — something she swore would never happen to her.

I have talked to her endlessly about the consequences. I have tried every approach to try and level with her — from coming from a place of love and understanding to giving her tough love, and everything in between. I've encouraged hobbies and ideas to keep busy (although difficult during COVID times) and I even provided her with an online counselor. I feel like I have exhausted every avenue, and I understand that a person can only change if they want to change.

This has become mentally and emotionally exhausting for me. I love my mom and know she is having a very difficult time. I am having trouble cutting ties entirely because I don't want to leave her during her time of desperate need; however, there is only so much more heartbreak I can handle.

What else can I do to help my mom, and when is it appropriate to cut ties and take a step back for my own mental health? — Exhausted from Alcoholism

Dear Exhausted from Alcoholism: The time to take a step back and focus on your own mental health is now. Your love and commitment to your parents and their health and well-being is clear. It is also clear how much your parents' suffering and alcoholism is affecting you. So, yes, though it's important to support them, it is equally important to protect yourself from them.

Your mother has succumbed to a very serious and addictive disease. Continue to tell her how much you love her and that you want her to get better. As much as you can, don't take on that burden of "healing" or "fixing" her. You have been through enough. And as you mentioned, a person will only change if they choose to change.

Surround yourself with healthy friends and family as much as you can. The people we surround ourselves — physically, virtually, mentally — influence our thoughts and behaviors. It's time to celebrate you and your own ability to heal.

Suggest AA and Al-Anon to your mom, as well as the help of a professional counselor who focuses on the issues of alcoholism and being married to an alcoholic. By stepping outside of her own problems and focusing on her husband, marriage and family, she might see her behavior with more clarity.

Wishing you well. Your mother sounds very smart and successful. I'm hopeful that, in time and with help, she will pull out of this. And remember, there is still hope for your father.
